In 2022, another study found that bitcoin prices increased following public announcements by Whale Alert on Twitter about Tether minting USDT. Media research Bloomberg News reporters found irregularities on the Kraken cryptocurrency exchange, with small market orders moving the market price of Tether as much as larger market orders from 1 May 2018 to 22 June 2018. "Log files revealed that Voiceverse had generated voice clips using 15.ai's platform, specifically of characters from My Little Pony: Friendship Is Magic, then altered the pitch to obscure their origin for use in their marketing materials. When confronted, Voiceverse claimed that someone on their marketing team had used the voice without proper attribution. The developer of 15.ai, who had previously stated their opposition to NFT integration in December 2021, responded with a tweet saying "Go fuck yourself," which went viral and garnered widespread community support. Following continued backlash and the plagiarism revelation, Baker acknowledged that his initial announcement had been "antagonistic" and subsequently ended his partnership with Voiceverse. Amar had purchased fake customer lists from third parties to create the illusion of a much larger client base. JPMorgan only realized the fraud when it attempted to contact Frank's customers and received very few responses than expected. Jamie Dimon, JPMorgan's CEO, has since called the Frank acquisition a "huge mistake," although the bank has remained silent in this regard. However, Javice's sentencing is scheduled for August 26, while Amar will be sentenced on July 23."
